Welcome!

As part of our Young People's Concerts, the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and the Columbus Ballet are thrilled to present this family friendly concert featuring characters represented by dancers from the Columbus Ballet as well as instruments from the symphony orchestra. Our school matinee performances on March 16, 2018 have been designed for children in Kindergarten through Grade 12 as an educational tool to develop students' understanding and appreciation of classical music and dance. The program introduces the arts as well as many interdisciplinary concepts and ideas. As part of this educational experience, a school resource guide will be available for download on our website (csoga.org/sleepingbeauty). The suggested activities in the resource guide are aligned with national and state standards and are to be used as introductory and follow-up learning objectives as well as preparing your students for their concert experience. This collaboration between two arts groups provides the very best symphonic music experience possible for the children in the Southeast region. The arts are an essential part of any educational process that hopes to produce well-rounded, engaged, and aware adults. Thank you for your interest in the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and the Columbus Ballet's production of Sleeping Beauty. We are excited to see you in the audience!
